Board learns McReynolds has a vision problem

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

Winston McReynolds, District 3, vice chairman of the Lee County Board, today revealed he has glaucoma and his sight is impaired and asked to be temporarily relieved from chairmanship of the Finance and Claims Committees.

McReynolds said he plans to keep his appointments until a final report on his physical condition is received.

Irvin Koch, District 2, board chairman, said others will read for McReynolds and assist him in any way and asked him to keep his appointments.

The board chairman called the resignation of Philip Slagle, District 4, because of a conflict of interest as a "regrettable thing and I am sorry it had to happen."

After the board accepted Slagle's resignation, Koch named the remaining members of District 4 as a committee to submit a nomination for his replacement.

Charles Dunphy, District 1, asked State's Atty. Patrick Ward if there are any other instances of conflicts of interest by board members.

Ward said he could not tell without making a detailed probe of the financial interests of all members.

The state's attorney told Dunphy any member found to be in conflict of interest will be notified by him of the situation before a public notice is made and he will be advised how to divest himself of the conflict and will be given 30 days to do so.

"I'm not sitting in an ivory tower bouncing people off the board," Ward concluded.

Elmer Miller, supervisor of assessments, told the board about a Lake County court case which may affect the receiving of a final multiplier which the county must have notification of before the county clerk can begin to spread taxes, and will probably result in late tax bills this spring.

The case in Lake County arose in which that county's assessor took it upon himself to put a multiplier on township assessments, which were only 26 1/2 per cent of fair cash values, Miller related.

The township took the county to court and when it was brought out the township's assessment was only 26 1/2 per cent of fair market value the judge ordered the assessments of all townships in the county reduced to 26 1/2 per cent of fair value, Miller related.

Later the State Department of Local Government Affairs (DLGA) slapped a 1.5 multiplier on all assessment in Lake County and the judge then ordered all assessments in the county to be set at 42 per cent of fair value, said the Lee County official.

A hearing in the case is being heard today and Miller said he did not know when the matter will be resolved and when the taxing machinery in Lee County might be put into action.

He ventured to say Lee County's assessment will not be affected by the judge's ruling because after deducting the negative multiplier the county is now assigned, the average assessment is 42.88 per cent of fair value.

John Stouffer, county clerk, volunteered, "We cannot get started on figuring taxes soon enough so tax bills can come out on time."

"It may be June before we can get tax bills ready," Stouffer predicted.

Miller said he did not know what would happen because he feared any ruling would put the DLGA "in such an upset state I don't know when they will get a final multiplier to us."

Stouffer retorted, "I don't see how that department can be in anymore upset a state of affairs than it has been."

"It is the sole reason why tax bills have been late for the last few years," Stouffer charged.

Steps taken to fill seat of Slagle

The board heard a report from Alan Hardersen director of the Youth Service Bureau, which included a return of $5,093 to the county.

Hardersen explained the amount returned is a part of a $7,500 grant received from the county which was not needed as local matching funds to get a grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

The director said since October the bureau has operated with a staff of four, including himself, and through January had received 92 juveniles referred to it.

Hardersen reported 56 per cent of those referred to the bureau have been high-school dropouts and the organization has started an alternate school which 35 youths are attending.

The alternate school provides them supplemental education of high-school courses and for some the preparation to pass the general educational development examination, which is considered an equivalent to a high-school diploma and which will permit them to enter Sauk Valley College.

The director reported 25 per cent of referees come from the law enforcement agencies or the probation officers; that 16 per cent are referred from high schools in the county; that almost 20 per cent are self-referrals and almost 26 per cent are referred by relatives or friends. The balance of referrals come from other agencies and private citizens, Hardersen said.

In other action the board approved giving a six-year contract to Ronald Brandau as county highway superintendent at a salary of $24,000, subject to annual review.

—Discovered $4,000 approved to be paid as the county's share of the local budget of the North West Regional Council of Public Officials had not been paid and ordered that it be paid.

—Also discovered $4,000 which was approved as the county's share of the blacktopping cost of Progress Drive west from Ill. 26 in the Tollway Industrial Park has not been paid and that city of Dixon and South Dixon Township, which each agreed to pay the same amounts, had sent checks for their commitments. The board ordered the matter be sent to the Finance Committee and be recommended it be paid.

—Heard a request of Sharon Thompson, county treasurer, for purchase of two calculators for which she has procured bids including trade-ins of two adding machines. The matter was referred to the County Property Committee.

—Learned from Sheriff Ray Nehring officers of the sheriff's Merit Commission are Lawrence Grove, president; Kenneth Delhotal, vice president, and Don Brown, secretary.

The sheriff also revealed he had agreed to trade a machinegun which he later realized was county property which he had no right to negotiate for disposal.

Nehring reported he had sought bids for the obsolete weapon and had gotten the highest offer from a federal ordnance plant in Georgia which was $975. The sheriff revealed the county will receive three M-16 automatic rifles and ammunition in exchange for the machinegun.

The board approved the trade.

—Was advised the River Run Subdivision has a new developer who seeks to enlarge lots which were previously recorded on plat approved by the county.

The matter was referred to the state's attorney. The new developer apparently seeks to rename the subdivision, Castellan. —Accepted $5,390 from the Lee County Housing Authority in lieu of property taxes.

Trucker burns to death

One man is dead this morning after fire swept through the cab of a semi-trailer truck after it overturned along Ill. 26 approximately one mile south of U.S. 30. The man believed to be driving the truck was Harold Keyley, address unknown. The truck was first believed to be carrying a toxic gas and firefighters wore protective air packs while fighting the fire. The truck was later found to be transporting peat moss. The truck was owned by Bradley Farms, Piggot, Ark. Dixon Rural firemen fought flames which kept reigniting from gas and oil in the engine. The Dixon Rural Fire Department was aided by the Harmon Fire Department. Lee County Deputies were also on the scene of the accident. Further details on the accident or fire were not available at presstime. (Telegraph Photo)

Ford promises energy rebates to farmers

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — President Ford told the Kansas legislature today he will propose an energy-related tax rebate to help farmers and pledged, "I will not let American agriculture run out of gas."

In an address prepared for the joint session in the state capitol, Ford said that "as long as I am President, the American farmer will receive the fuel he needs to do his job."

Continuing his cross-country travels on behalf of the administration's energy program, Ford said he has ordered the drafting of "a rebate program to compensate the farmer for increased energy costs caused by our conservation program."

Saying details would be announced within a few weeks, Ford declared, "I wanted you to know now that this problem is at the top of my list of concerns, as well as yours."

He acknowledged the administration's conservation program will raise energy costs in agriculture but said, "I am doing something about it."

Ford arrived here on the second day of his journey to continue promoting his embattled energy program, which encountered new criticism from some of the nation's governors.

In addition to a speech and a meeting with five Southwest governors in Houston Monday, Ford also held a surprise private meeting with former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who faces trial this spring in federal bribery and perjury charges.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford initiated the 45-minute meeting with the former Texas governor, who switched to the Republican party in 1972 and campaigned for Richard M. Nixon.

Nessen said he sat in on the closing minutes of the session and "got the feeling it was more social than anything else." He reported the two men talked about energy and the economy but did not talk politics.

"Gov. Connally's legal problems were not discussed," he said.

Earlier in the day Ford met with Govs. Dolph Briscoe of Texas, David L. Boren of Oklahoma, David Pryor of Arkansas, Raul Castro of Arizona and Jerry Apodaca of New Mexico. All are Democrats.

All except Apodaca told reporters they would like to see Ford's higher oil tariffs shelved while an alternate approach to encourage petroleum conservation is sought.

Apodaca said he had no strong feelings one way or the other but was mainly concerned that the oil producing states of the West not become colonies of the Northeast

Ogle Board hears requests for grants

By LENNY INGRASSIA

OREGON—County officers and members of judiciary swarmed into the county board room this morning seeking approval of matching federal law-enforcement grants for projects ranging from a new facility for a sheltered-care home to a criminal investigator for the state's attorney's office, both of which received approval.

The requests followed an Illinois Law Enforcement Commission disclosure of an estimated $3.5 million lying dormant and awaiting disbursement for Illinois counties for law-related programs.

Circuit Judge John Moore proposed construction of a 9,000-square-foot facility to house 30 children age 17 and under. Financing of the $250,000 building, according to Judge Moore, would be split between federal, state and local levels, with Ogle County's share costing $62,500.

Judge Moore did not disclose a site for construction. An estimated $40,000 annual budget for staffing a full-time psychologist-administrator and other staff was suggested by Judge Moore.

The resolution approved by the board will be forwarded to ILEC for their deliberation. A decision on the funding was expected by March 1.

The home would be used as a detention facility for juveniles awaiting court hearings as well as a rehabilitation center for youths.

The county presently pays Winnebago County $25 per day for housing each juvenile sent to the Rockford facility, the closest such home in the area. Under federal laws the juveniles must be held in separate facility other than the county jail.

"The trend in the state is going toward local facilities," Judge Moore said. He added that surrounding counties, including Lee and Whiteside, have indicated they would support the home's operation by referring their juveniles to the new facility.

Judge Moore additionally called for courthouse renovations including moving the third-floor state's attorney's office to another location and using that space for jury and witness rooms. "I'll be asking for funds for this in my budget next year," the judge said.

The judge additionally called for the hiring of another assistant state's attorney "to handle the increased load." "We just have more people being arrested and more of them going to trial," Judge Moore said.

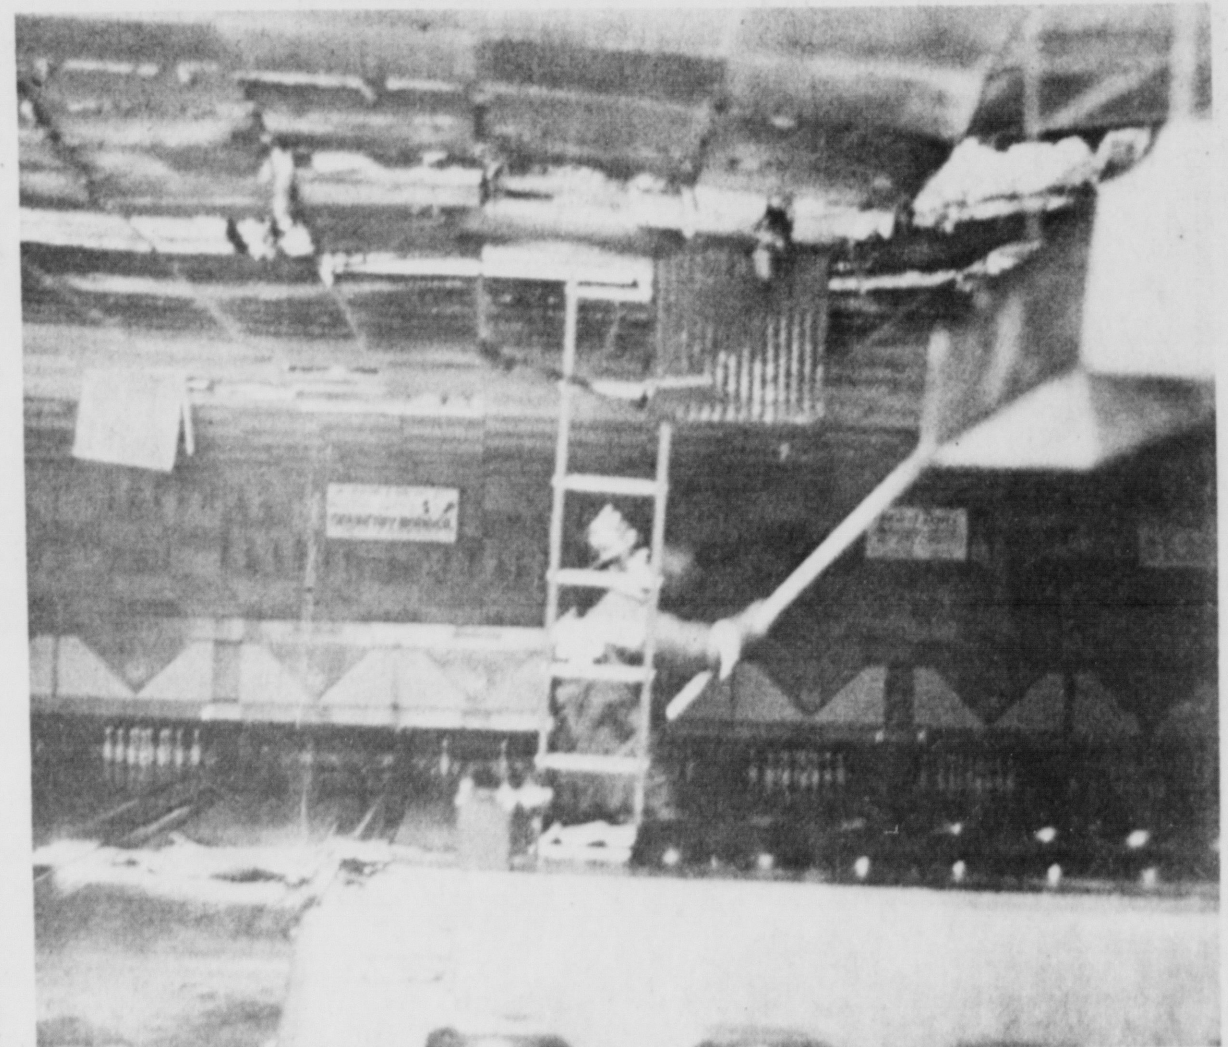

Following Judge Moore, Chief Probation Officer Spencer Blanchard got board funding of $1,045 for the county's share of an ILEC grant providing a coordinator for the Volunteers in Probation program.

"The coordinator will seek out volunteers to work with the probationers on a one-to-one basis," Blanchard said. Ogle County has 200 persons on probation.

Applications are being accepted for the coordinator's post at an annual salary of $10,500. On a 17-5 roll call vote, members approved local funding of the grant.

Sheriff Jerry Brooks presented the annual report to the board, showing serious crime arrests throughout the year 1974 increasing to 169 compared to 137 in 1973. Serious crimes included in the report were attempted murder, reckless homicide, kidnapping, rape, bodily harm offenses, auto thefts and burglary and theft calls. Brooks attributed the increase in crime in part to the opening of the east-west tollway, allowing easy access to the communities.

Truck crash is blamed in Rochelle fires

ROCHELLE—City firemen were called to a series of fires Friday in Rochelle, possibly caused by an accident which occurred at 1:50 p.m. when a semi-trailer driven by Theodore Massett, 53, Knoxville, slid into a utility pole on U.S. 51.

The collision caused a power blackout in all parts of the city.

At 2:39 p.m. firemen were called to a business on U.S. 51 where a plugged-in auto battery charger started a fire, and an additional fire struck the New-Bowl Bowling Alleys at 2:45 p.m. The fire, which began in the building's heating area back of the bowling alley, spread to the roof causing several thousands of dollars in damage. Firemen were at the site for three hours.

The alleys were saved from serious damage, according to the owner of the establishment, Harlan Offenheiser.

The bowling alley is connected to Erik Bruge's restaurant, which had some damage from dense smoke but no water damage.

At 2:50 p.m. a plugged-in auto battery charger started another fire at 607 S. Third St., and a power failure occurred on Main St. at 9:20 p.m.

Will announce end to highway fund freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will announce today that he will free $2 billion in impounded highway funds — a move that will create an estimated 140,000 to 300,000 new jobs, sources said.

The sources said the President would make the announcement part of his address to the Kansas Legislature during his visit to the Midwest.

The President has been under pressure both from state officials and congressional leaders to free $4.3 billion in highway funds for fiscal year 1975, which have been impounded by the Office of Management and Budget.

A resolution currently is pending in the Senate which would overrule the President's deferral of the federal aid highway funds.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., author of the resolution, said last week he had received information indicating that more than $2 billion in highway work could be placed under contract by the end of June in addition to the $2.3 billion already programmed for that period.

"This could create well over 300,000 jobs — or even more if the money is concentrated in projects that have a higher labor usage than the average," he said.

Randolph said he based his estimate of the number of jobs on a study by the Federal Highway Administration showing that 151,040 jobs are created for each $1 billion spent in highway construction.

Other sources said, however, that the estimate was high and said about 70,000 jobs are created for each $1 billion spent.

There was no breakdown immediately available on how much each state would receive once the $2 billion is released.

Ford has said in the past he was considering releasing some of the impounded funds. He made the comment in meetings with governors last week and Monday after they urged that the impounded funds be released.

Crime, punishment sometimes...

By DON OAKLEY

Prison warden Lewis E. Lawes, author of "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," once said, not entirely in jest, that "society will not improve until a better class of people goes to jail." Thanks to Watergate, a better class of people has been going to jail in America. It may be questioned, though, just how much of a salutary effect on society is achieved by the brief confinement in minimum-security, country-club-type surroundings and the subsequent literary enrichment of men who attempted to suborn the American political system.

Also open to question may be the value to society of jailing somebody like bandleader "Skitch" Henderson, who has been sentenced to six months for falsifying his income tax returns—especially in view of the fact that no criminal charges were brought against a certain ex-president who did much the same thing.

Henderson was convicted of backdating the gift of his musical library to the University of Wisconsin, for which he claimed a deduction of $350,000 and which the government claimed was worthless.

In sentencing Henderson to prison, however, Manhattan Federal Court Judge Edward Weinfeld touched on one truth that has been all but ignored of late by the "suffered enough" apologists:

Not only must justice be done of behalf of society, but society must see justice being done.

In all the talk about penal reform, and particularly in the controversy over the death penalty, most attention has been focused on the criminal. The emphasis is on rehabilitation, and anyone who maintains that the primary objective must be the punishment of wrongdoers is almost guilty of heresy.

No one, of course, should want a return to the days when people were hanged in public for a whole list of petty offenses. But in attempting to humanize our penal codes, we seem to have forgotten that society also has certain needs.

If it is true that the routine execution of criminals had a brutalizing effect on society, it is also true that the defacto absence of a supreme penalty in this country today may also have unhealthy consequences.

When a cold-blooded murderer can expect not much harsher penalty than a common burglar, our concept of justice has become seriously distorted.

Capital punishment aside, when a drug peddler receives no more penalty than a tax evader, something is also seriously wrong.

The latter happened in Ohio last month. A drug pusher, whose clientele included school children, was released on "shock probation" after just six months in prison. The theory behind "shock probation" is that a brief stay in prison followed by sudden release may have a rehabilitative effect that continued confinement would not.

Maybe so. But the demoralizing effect on society, and on law enforcement authorities, of this sort of thing is incalculable, as the outcry in Ohio over the episode testifies.

Warden Lawes to the contrary, society will not improve until those who break its laws receive swift and fair—and, above all, certain—punishment.

Inflation and drug addiction

(Editor's Note: The following column is excerpted from a fortnightly economic newsletter. The Rene Baxter Letter, published at 4045 East Palm Lane, Phoenix, Ariz. 85008. Subscriptions available at the rate of $75 per year (26 issues).)

There is a very strong similarity between heroin addiction and inflation. If a heroin addict goes to his doctor complaining of his symptoms, his doctor will instantly recognize the problem and propose a simple, although unpleasant remedy—withdrawal. The addict, if he follows his doctor's orders, will go through a terrible period of depression and suffering as his body throws off the effects of the disruptive drug. Within a short time, though, the patient will regain his physical stability, health and well being. His doctor will advise him that the only way to prevent a return of the terrible dependence and suffering of the disease is to avoid ever again taking even the tiniest dose of the disruptive drug.

If the addict, on the other hand, refuses to heed his physician's instructions, preferring instead the short term appearance of normalcy and periodic artificial euphoria of the drug to the rigors of treatment, he will face a certain future: accelerating dependence on ever larger doses, increasing debility and, in the end, death from either an overdose or from one of the many complications of his disease (pneumonia, hepatitis, etc.).

The cause of inflation and its inevitable course are startlingly similar. The free market functions much as the body does, a complex of self-stabilizing mechanisms and systems. Injections of fiat paper money disrupt these orderly processes and create a temporary and artificial euphoria, a "boom." If no new money is available to sustain the boom, depression sets in, and the market moves to reestablish itself. The euphoria can only be sustained by increasingly larger doses of the drug, money.

As the addiction progresses, the economy begins to exhibit a variety of unpleasant symptoms due to the disruption of its delicate systems: rising prices and wages, labor unrest, a lower real standard of living, breakdown of trade, disruption of production, shortages, speculative runs, declining liquidity, bank failures, gold outflows, rising unemployment, etc.

At some point in the development of the disease, the health of the economy is at such a low ebb that even massive doses of new money and credit produce only the briefest relief from suffering. In the end, of course, the economy collapses, either in an overdose (runaway inflation) or from one of the numerous complications of the disease (revolution, coup d'etat, famine, etc.).

The major difference between medicine and economics is the intellectual and scientific stature of the disciplines. The doctor is a scientist; the economist (with only a few exceptions) is a witch doctor. When the drug addict sees his doctor he gets good advice, based on rational scientific theories. But when people seek the advice of their Harvard economists, they get the worst possible advice—take more of the drug; try not to overdose yourself, but avoid the pain of withdrawal at all cost; there's nothing wrong with fiat paper money; gold is a barbarous relic; follow us, we'll show you the way to never-ending prosperity, full employment and cradle to grave guaranteed security; in fact, we'll see that you get it all free of charge; step right up, folks, and roll up your left sleeves.

Tragedy by the numbers

Confucius might have said it: One statistic is worth a thousand words of speculation about what is going on in China.

Approximately 30,000 Chinese fled the mainland to Hong Kong during 1974, according to the annual report of the International Rescue Committee. More than 7,000 of them were assisted by the IRC as part of its worldwide efforts on behalf of the victims of oppression, which began in 1933.

Most of the refugees were young people who swam from four to 12 hours across Deep Bay and Mirs Bay. Others fled in boats (55 in a single boat), as well as by foot across the land border separating China from Hong Kong.

Tragically, last November Hong Kong authorities announced that "freedom swimmers" trying to enter the British Crown colony would be returned. And in December, 223 of them were, in fact, handed over to the police of mainland China.

Whether they were luckier than 207 other swimmers who didn't make it, nobody knows. During 1974, that many bodies were washed ashore, and hundreds more refugees are believed to have died in attempts to reach Hong Kong.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—Not since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt has a President "barnstormed" the country like Gerald Ford is now doing. His press secretary Monday even conceded to use the term "barnstorming" in commenting on the President's whirlwind visit to several western states.

Ford makes little attempt to camouflage the reason for his extensive travels throughout the United States. It is to drum up support for his emergency energy and economic legislation which the heavily Democratic Congress has made noises about scuttling in favor of their own plan.

If you listen to the Democrats you are told the President's import duty on oil is inflationary and his quota to reduce importation of oil by a million barrels a day this year and two million daily by the end of 1976 is unrealistic.

A week ago Sunday, Al Ullman, the Oregon Democrat, who sits on the throne once occupied by Wilbur Mills, declared it is unreal to expect a reduction in our usage of oil sufficient to curtail imports as much as Ford calls for.

He suggested a twin program for setting in motion devices to reduce our consumption of oil, hopeful without imposing rationing, and for an honest-to-goodness effort to develop domestic supplies of oil to meet our needs as rapidly as possible.

Ullman favors giving motorists enough gasoline for necessary travel at prevailing prices and placing a surcharge of from 40 to 50 cents per gallon on any fuel over the allocated amount.

This past Sunday, another high-placed Democrat faced ABC's cameras and suggested virtually the same programs as espoused by Ullman. The latter was Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., who this session was promoted to chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, a post which was held by Wright Patman from Texas for about a quarter of a century.

Reuss predicted the oil shortage problem will be with us the rest of this century.

That the energy problem is not as severe as last year, compared to the economic problem which is facing us.

The Milwaukee lawyer, who has been in congress since 1954, asserted, "It does no good to try to solve the energy problem by policies which will throw people out of work."

Like Ullman, Reuss labeled Ford's plan to impose a $1 to eventually $3 duty on imported oil as inflationary.

Reuss, regarding energy, said, "Five years hence, billions of cash reserves will be held by Arabs who by that time will have substantial holdings in the United States. Then we'll be looking down Arab muzzles because they will be controlling the multinational oil companies now controlled by U.S. citizens."

He declared we should expend every effort to expand domestic oil production.

Reuss, as well as Ullman, is a member of the joint economic commission, named by House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Oklahoma, told reporters he was not "at liberty to divulge the suggestions the commission will recommend," but he did comment on what he said would not be far from the commission's proposals.

The points were much like those made by Ullman, a week ago on an NBC program.

Cut down on the use of gasoline by discouraging the luxury use of the fuel. "The American worker deserves gasoline to get to work and to go shopping and for other essential purposes at a fair price." The need is to get rid of arbitrary restrictions and to impose higher prices on gasoline used for luxury travel.

The central issue is to get assembly lines going and get the 300,000 auto workers now laid off back to work.

Even with auto production back at regular schedules, the industry will still face long-range problems accompanied with the fact we are living in the waning age of the heavy use of petroleum and the passing time of the internal combustion engine.

Detroit's auto plants could be converted to manufacture equipment for mass transit systems the country needs to develop, like those in Europe and in Japan. AMTRAK vehicles, buses and subway cars could be produced in Detroit.

The money supply should be expanded to get the country out of the recession, but it should not be increased so much as to set off another inflation spiral.

The reason Ford is traveling these United States at a feverish pace can be deduced from listening to these two newly elected Democrats to powerful committees.

The unusual similarity of their language addressing the energy and economic problems says volumes about the unitedness of Democrats in the House of Representatives which spells big trouble for the President.

Court endorses pupil power

WASHINGTON (LENS)—Schoolchildren won new rights on Jan. 22 when the Supreme Court ruled, in a 5-4 decision that they may not be arbitrarily suspended from school. Justice Byron White, writing the majority opinion, held that schoolchildren have as much right as anyone else to due process under the Constitution; once they have been guaranteed an elementary and secondary education by the states this cannot be denied them without a fair investigation into whether their conduct warrants a suspension.

The majority opinion detailed three rudimentary precautions which would safeguard pupils threatened with short-term suspension. They must be notified of the charges against them and have any adverse evidence explained to them as well as having the opportunity to present their side of the story.

The case before the court concerned the suspension of nine high-school students in Columbus, Ohio, during a racial demonstration in 1971. Civil rights leaders have taken up the students' cause, claiming that all too often teachers, particularly in poor city schools, suspend black and Puerto Rican students with insufficient reason.

In New York City nearly 20,000 of the one million schoolchildren were suspended last year alone. Teachers reply that by ruling as it did the court has tied their hands in disciplining unruly pupils.

They were backed by a strongly-worded minority opinion written by the four justices appointed by President Nixon. The justices held that the majority decision was an "unprecedented intrusion" into the educational process and as such would open the door to other types of cases. Soon, they maintained, students would be taking their schools to court for given them unfair school marks.

The last time the Supreme Court ruled on students' rights was in 1969, when pupils won the right to engage in peaceful protest, namely the right to wear black armbands as a sign of their protest against the Vietnam war. But, for the most part, schoolchildren's rights have been a neglected area of law.

However, last year Congress started the ball rolling by requiring schools and universities to open their students' records to parents and to the pupils themselves, once they are 18 years old. The content of the records can then be challenged and, if shown to be unfair, removed.

If the schools fail to comply with the new law they stand to lose their federal money. For some time parents have been up in arms against the schools' policy of refusing to allow parents to see their own children's files, while willingly handing them over to government authorities, notably the police.

The new rule, introduced by Sen. James Buckley (R-N.Y.) as an amendment to the school aid bill, was intended only to stop unjustified remarks and errors of fact getting into a student's file, where they could jeopardize his career.

But the wording of the Buckley amendment was so vague that at first it seemed that students would be allowed to scrutinize their entire school records.

Only after clarification did the amendment place parents' financial statements and psychiatrists' reports out of bounds to the students, as well as confidential letters from referees already in the files when the amendment became law on Jan. 1.

However, in the future they will have a right to see these letters, leading many school officials to predict that recommendations will become almost meaningless because referees will be discouraged from writing bad reports. But teachers agree that this obstacle can be easily removed by telephoning an honest assessment, out of ear-shot of the students.

Breast Cancer is Curable
Early detection is the key

The American Cancer Society

Breast Cancer Health Quiz

EIGHTH IN A SERIES:
Q: Why Is Breast Self-Examination So Important?

ANSWER: The oldest, by far the most common, and probably the most effective method for earlier breast cancer detection is B.S.E.—breast self-examination.

This procedure is simplest to follow, the least expensive, the most readily available. It improves in value with regular repetition. It can be used profitably at any age, in any climate, and in any location.

Many women, however, have never had the inclination or the courage to examine their own breasts. They seem to be turned off by the irregularities and the variations in consistency they find. Some women complain that they develop anxieties when they feel their breasts because they suspect they have lumps.

A woman needs to be aware that a breast is not a jelly-like mass, but that it does and should contain various structures, some of which are felt as nodules or thickenings or small lumps. After a complete professional examination she should be reassured that her breasts are normal, with all the little irregularities.

Every woman's breast is different from all the others. Each breast varies in texture from year to year, and often during a single month. It is true that an intelligent woman's fingers are an excellent method of breast examination because every woman can become aware of her own breast makeup and can readily detect a change, often a very tiny variation.

Metal Furniture...
A Sign of the Times.

Metal is an extremely popular material on the furniture scene today. It began gaining popularity after World War II when newer, more practical materials were being sought for furniture design. At first metal was confined to the kitchen, porch or patio. Today, it can be found in every room of the home.

Metal furniture is characterized by its simplicity of styling. Lines are either straight or smoothly curved. The furniture form and finish replace decoration or ornamentation, often found on other types of furnishings.

Metal furniture is both attractive and very easy-to-care for. You will find it made of several materials, including brass, stainless steel, chrome-plated tubing, aluminum, copper and wrought iron. Metal furniture is ideal for the contemporary homes of today. It mixes well with cloth, glass, wood and various molded plastic surfaces.

With metal now ever increasing in popularity, stop in at Dunbar's and see unusual items. We have perfect furniture for every room in your home. Visit us today.

There Are Sales and There Are Sails

NOW HOME LUMBER IS COMBINING THE BEST OF BOTH!

The Sunflower.

The sunflower is for people who want to spend all the time they have for sailing, just sailing. And no time at all on maintenance and repairs. For for foot she's the toughest little sailboat made. Her 50 in hull is made of Corliffe, a material that's actually tougher than fiberglass. She's also light, her hull weighs only 40 pounds. You can easily carry or car-top the Sunflower any place there's water. Show your gear under her splash deck, hoist the sail and you're off. After your sail, you can store her in your garage or attic. Of course the Sunflower is more than just a beautiful, practical and almost indestructible sailboat. She's also a fine nautical design that's been rigorously and thoroughly tested, and a recognized class boat that's a breeze to sail.

MAKING GARMENTS AT HOME is one way homemakers are making clothing dollars go farther. Marjorie Mead, University of Illinois Extension Clothing and Textiles Specialist, standing, points out the correct stitch length to use on a heavy woolen fabric. Mrs. Frances Reeverts, Lee County Extension adviser, adds that a limited number of reservations are being accepted now for an adult education clothing class in "Making Menswear." This class will be held in four meetings scheduled for March and April at the county Extension office in Amboy. Specific information about this class may be obtained by calling 857-3525 or by stopping at the office. Other adult education programs are available during the year to help homemakers learn to make high-quality garments.

Homemakers news

By FRANCES G. REEVERTS
Lee Co. Extension Adviser
Everybody talks about the current high cost of living. That's easy. But there's good evidence that homemakers are doing something about one part of the problem: the high cost of clothing.
For one thing, many homemakers have either begun or returned to home sewing. Sales of fabric and sewing equipment have been strong. And interest in sewing instructions—both formal and informal education—is at an all-time high.

"Fads" Disappear
Homemakers have also directed efforts to selecting longer-lasting clothing and textiles of good quality and conservative style. "Fad" items aren't moving as they have in the past. It's the "back-to-basics" items that can be worn with a variety of accessories and still be in fashion for several years that are leaving the racks of clothing stores today.

And a number of homemakers have begun shopping the thrift shops for used clothing. They're not just the lower-income homemakers either. Such stores become the target of many bargain-minded, middle-class and well-to-do shoppers as well.

The irony is that there are fewer quality items being offered in secondhand outlets because the regular donors are wearing their clothing for a longer time too.

Retailers are trying to cut costs and hold down prices by stocking leaner inventories of clothing and by early mark-downs of slow-moving goods. In general, advertising stresses middle- and lower-priced items.

Clothing shown in retail stores tends toward simplicity and practicality for all family members. Many items are being imported as indicated by labels on leather handbags and shoes from Brazil, sweaters and pantsuits from Hong Kong, and garments from Taiwan where labor costs make it possible to produce such items more cheaply.

So consumers do have opportunities to avoid running head-on into increasing clothing costs. But probably their greatest opportunity to make clothing money "go farther" comes through wise buying at the clothing store.

Wise Buying
There is no set formula to decide how much to spend for clothes. But there is little question that clothing purchases should be budgeted in an overall family spending plan.

Any clothing purchasing plan has to consider these factors: What clothes are needed; what clothes are already on hand, and what clothes can be obtained without purchasing them (for example, some items can be made or fashioned from items already on hand; others can be suggested gift items from family members or friends).

Wise clothing purchases are most often planned. But sometimes spur-of-the-moment purchases meet a need that can't really be defined. As long as such purchases are used, and no one is deprived of a more basic need because of it, there is no reason to make an occasional quick decision to change your plan.

Two ways to dump a loser

By Oswald & James Jacoby
North bid this hand with all the delicacy of a charging rhinoceros, but no one can blame him for insisting on a slam after his partner opened the bidding with a spade.

South's first look at dummy suggested that maybe he should give up opening 10 high-card point hands. A second glance told him that everything was going to be all right.

Then he played low from dummy and ruffed, then led his three of clubs. This gave West his choice of ways to let South bring home the slam. Actually, he chose to duck. Dummy's queen of clubs won the trick, trumps were pulled with two leads and the king-eight of clubs discarded on the two high diamonds. South still had to lose a heart trick but he could afford it.

If West had hopped up with the ace of clubs South would have been able to discard one of dummy's low hearts on the king of clubs. He would have lost a trick to the ace of clubs but the heart loser would have vanished into thin air.

DEAR READERS: Judging from the number of answers received from all over the country telling Mrs. H.H. how to make beer can hats, they are really catching on with the younger set. We learned they are made with brims or with visors—with pompons on top or without—out of any can that strikes one's fancy. We are printing the directions for such a hat with a brim and stove pipe crown as requested by Mrs. H.H. and her neighbors. This should help the ecology problem since fewer cans may be tossed along our roadsides.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. H.H.—To make a beer can hat one needs a size F crochet hook, one skein wool yarn, sharp scissors, one paper hole punch and three beer cans (recyclable aluminum is best). Cut off the rims on the beer cans. Cut cans into six panels—five for the hat and the sixth cut into a four-inch circle. Round the corners so they will not cut through the yarn. With paper punch put holes in each corner and then six others between each of them, making 28 holes in each. Punch about 20 in the circle.

Begin at upper right hand corner. With yarn single crochet four stitches in corner hole (same for other corners) but only two single crochet in the holes between. Continue all around and join last stitch to first and cut yarn so from six to eight inches is left on the end to use for sewing panels together. Do all five panels in the same manner unless one has a large head size. Then put two rows of crochet around each panel. Beginning with the top of the design on the circle make two single crochets in every hole around and join to the first and continue around by increasing every 10th single crochet and on fourth round work in every single crochet with no increases. Join and cut, leaving about 12 inches of yarn. This is to sew crown on hat.

Sew the five panels together working in back loops only of the single crochet. Join to form a circle, single crochet around top and sew crown piece in using back loops only. To make the brim attach yarn to back of hat and do single crochet increasing two stitches at the center of each panel every third round until the desired width is made. Women seem to like the floppy brims that usually take about 17 rounds but that depends somewhat on your yarn and its thickness. Good luck and I do hope the hats turn out well for all of you.—NANCY.

Elegant simplicity is found in fashions by Dattilo

NEW YORK (NEA)—Young West Coast designer Dattilo believes that women want to get back into dresses — that they enjoy wearing skirts and suits as well as pants. And that they like a little jacket to wear with their skirts, pants and dresses.

"I know that they like the looser, relaxed feel in their clothes," Dattilo said. "I included all these looks in my Spring collection."

Background
Dattilo was born in Italy 35 years ago. He has an unbeatable background in fine Italian craftsmanship. "I'm a graduate of the Istituto Nazionale Alta Moda in Rome," he said. That's the highest acclaimed school of fashion in Europe.

"I worked in the top couture houses for both men and women in Rome for several years before I came to America where I worked heading up the design division for Cooper Couture in California for a period of six years before opening my own business in 1970."

He is not only a fine artist who does his own design sketches for clothes but he is also an expert pattern man and fitter. He designs his own fabrics, buttons and accessories. And he works with mills both here and abroad.

In his first five years of business he has built his own following of fashion-conscious women throughout the United States. He believes that clothes that are in fashion one season and out the next have become passe — an unaffordable luxury that women no longer want.

"One must learn to fight today's high prices and inflation," he said. "Instead of buying new clothes head to foot each season, you must learn to add parts to give last season's clothes the look of today. It is up to the designer to think that way, too."

Miss Reints exchanges vows with Jeffrey G. Weishaar

LINDENWOOD—Recent marriage vows were exchanged in the Lindenwood Union Church by Miss Renee Sue Reints, daughter of Ben Reints Jr., Lindenwood, and Jeffrey George Weishaar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weishaar, Ashton.

The Rev. B. F. Loyd was the officiating clergyman for the double-ring wedding, and decorations included white pew bows and twin altar arrangements of white gladioli and pink carnations flanked by candelabra.

Musicians

Alex Korkolis provided organ accompaniment for vocal selections by Mrs. Leonard Carmichael.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a princess gown of white satin fashioned with a high lace-trimmed neckline and tapered sleeves. Pearl-embroidered lace accented the gown's empire bodice and a border of lace flowers encircled the hemline of her floor-length skirt. Matching lace bordered her chapel-length illusion veil, which fell from a contoured bonnet of lace and pearls, and the bouquet she carried combined red roses, pink carnations and baby's breath tied with pink ribbons.

Miss Barbara Ohlinger, who served as maid of honor, wore a full-length dusty-rose gown featuring an empire bodice trimmed with white lace and styled with long puffed sleeves, also trimmed with lace. Her headress was a matching pink crocheted hat trimmed with a red rose, and she carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

Identically styled gowns of wine fabric were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Joyce Reints, sister of the bride, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Jan Weishaar. Pink roses accented their wine crocheted hats, and they carried long-stemmed pink roses.

A similar wine frock was worn by the ceremonial flower girl, Miss Keri Fischer, and rose petals filled the miniature basket she carried. Participating as ringbearer was Brian Fischer.

William Muhlach attended the bridegroom as best man; groomsmen were James Reints and Lloyd Zimmer, and wedding guests were ushered by Michael Reints and John Sachs.

A reception at the 18th Amendment near Rochelle, followed the ceremony when music was provided by "Jeff and His Band" and Lloyd Zimmer's Dixieland Band.

A decorated wedding cake was served by Miss Lori Broitman, Mrs. Russell Reints and Mrs. Marsha Herrmann, and presiding at the punch bowl and coffee service were Miss Nancy Detig and Miss Susan Muhlach. Guests were registered by Miss Susan Detig and Miss Lisa Muhlach, and gifts for the couple were displayed and registered by Miss Mary Detig and

MR. AND MRS. JEFFREY G. WEISHAAR

Miss Sally Heath.

Reside in Ashton

Since their return from a wedding trip to Mt. Horeb, Wis., the newlyweds have been residing on N. Paddock Ave., Ashton.

The new Mrs. Weishaar is a 1974 graduate of Rochelle Township High School, and her husband, who is the leader of "Jeff and His Band," graduated in 1973 from Ashton High School.

Dear ANN: by Ann Landers

Dear Readers: Pass the humble pie. I've done it again. This time to the insurance companies.

Remember the letter from the young man whose uncle had throat cancer and committed suicide? The nephew greatly admired his uncle's wisdom. He put it this way: "His business was in perfect order. He had money in the bank. All his debts were paid and his wife would benefit from a very nice insurance policy. Had my uncle spent his money on hospitals and doctors he would have impoverished his family and suffered a great deal of physical agony. The way I see it, Uncle was a wise man. What do you say, Ann Landers?"

I said two things. First, that perhaps Uncle wasn't so wise because cancer of the throat is not always fatal and had he sought treatment he might have beaten the rap.

My second statement was a bummer: "It's a rare insurance policy that pays off on a suicide."

The morning that column appeared, the Chicago Sun-Times switchboard lit up like a Christmas tree. "Prudential calling... Mutual of Omaha on the line... George Herrmann and Company... World Book Insurance... Occidental Life is waiting..." And so it went. The first letter came from Pierre G. Rothstein of Chicago and then hundreds followed.

So this is to tell you that almost all insurance companies will pay on suicides, provided the policy has been in effect for two years. There are exceptions however, so check YOUR policy for special clauses. Mea culpa — and shame on me.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I accumulated $2,500 in a local bank by depositing $5 and $10 a week. Our 20-year-old son, who does not live at home, entered our house when we were on vacation, then presented our passbook at the bank and withdrew $100 by forging his father's signature to our joint account.

Having successfully made his first withdrawal, he proceeded to forge his father's name at this bank and in other branches in the city. Within two weeks he emptied the account of all but $5.

After the first withdrawal he requested a duplicate bank book and was given one so he could return the original to our house, using the duplicate in the hope that he could replace the money before we found out what he had done.

We might have been spared all this grief had one person been alert. Why did they give him a duplicate passbook? How could so many people in the respected profession of banking have used such poor judgment? — Syracuse, N.Y.

Dear Syracuse: I find it fascinating that the thrust of your complaint is that the bank employees "were not alert." The real tragedy is that your son is a crook.

Some banks, when they learn they have paid out money on a forged check, reimburse the victims. Usually they ask the victims to sign an affidavit giving the bank the right to bring suit against the forger.

My Chicago banking consultant suggests that you write to the senior office of your bank if you wish to recover the money and prosecute. My advice is to try to get that boy into therapy.

Rochelle ministers request ban on adult magazines

ROCHELLE—The Rochelle City Council met Friday night when the first hour was devoted to a discussion by Mayor Bill Cipolla, the Rev. John Palmer, pastor of the Rochelle Church of God and the Rev. Wayne Musson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, on what was described by the ministers as being obscene literature in three Rochelle establishments.

The establishments are a drug store operated by Mrs. Glenn Tucker, a drug store operated by Thomas Gleichman, and a news agency operated by David Stone.

In a letter to the council, the merchants stated they would meet with the ministerial association to discuss the matter, and they would practice discretion in the sale of certain magazines.

David Guest, city attorney, stated that obscenity is subject to concept and what is obscene to one is not to another.

The Rev. Mr. Palmer stated that a 1947 city ordinance in regard to objectionable literature and movies, should be enforced.

In other business, the council denied the preliminary plat sought by Paul Jones, Sunset Fields, Subdivision N. 4, and they referred the plat of Don Horner's to the planning commission. The council also adopted two resolutions in regard to flood insurance, which would allow Rochelle to participate in the 1968 National Flood Insurance Act.

The council also accepted the bid for a new squad car submitted by the Sawicki Car Agency at a total amount of $4,549.50, and gave permission to the VFW to hold their annual Loyalty Day parade on May 3.

Hitler film set at SVC

The Sauk Valley Film Commission will present Leni Riefenstahl's "Triumph of the Will" on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Sauk Valley College Little Theatre.

Hitler himself commissioned Miss Riefenstahl to produce this record of the Sixth Annual Party Congress in Nuremberg. The movie is a gigantic extravaganza involving the efforts of hundreds of thousands of people. Hitler-Messiah makes his way through the streets of Nuremberg clogged with frenzied worshippers amidst a sea of swastika banners.

There are major policy speeches by Goebbels, Goering, Streicher, Himmler, and Hess. This two-hour expression of a fanatical devotion to the "Führer" principle is a unique historical record which perhaps more than any other document of the time exposes the psychology of the Third Reich.

This film will be free to SVC students with their ID cards. Non-students will be charged $1.

Testing at Rochelle

ROCHELLE—Rochelle Township High School will administer the National Educational Development Tests, a testing program that helps professional educators, parents, and students plan together for the educational and vocational future of the students.

Art Margheim, chairman of the counseling department, says that the NEDT program is being used because it will give the school the type of information it needs to help the students make realistic decisions. The NEDT will help the student plan wisely for his future education and career.

"The program will reveal how well the students can apply the skills they have acquired since entering school. It will help us recognize the strengths in each student's educational development and, at the same time, will pinpoint weaknesses. This information will enable us to know how we can help a particular student while he is still in school, and will guide us in improving our program so that other youngsters can be helped earlier in their education."

Haggstad was one of 70 officers from 28 states attending the two-week program.

Open house is planned

ROCHELLE—Glen Kellmann, vocational counselor at Rochelle Township High School, announced an invitation to an open house to be held Sunday at the Rockford Area Vocational Center, 5125 35th St., Rockford.

The hours which the center will be open are from 1 to 4 p.m. Both administration and staff will be on hand to explain the various programs being offered.

Adults of all ages as well as students from the 5th through 11th grades are especially invited to the open house. This is the concluding event for the scheduled activities during Vocational Education Week.

Library to close

The Dixon Public Library will be closed Wednesday in observance of Lincoln's Birthday.

Both drivers given tickets

No injuries were reported in a two-car collision Monday; however, both motorists involved were ticketed by investigating Dixon Police.

Officers said autos driven by Cathy S. Dyche, 17, Rt. 3, and James L. Hackbarth, 38, 846 E. Graham St., were traveling east on Bradshaw Street when Miss Dyche attempted a left turn onto Jefferson Avenue.

Hackbarth told police he was unable to stop in time to avoid a rear-end collision with the Dyche auto. He added that she signaled for the turn just before the intersection.

Police cited Hackbarth with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and Miss Dyche with failure to give a turn signal within 100 feet of an intersection.

VICA Week is observed

This is National VICA Week. Students at Dixon High School are promoting the following facts:

VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) is a national organization for trade, industrial, technical and health occupation students. Through club activities planned, initiated, and conducted by members, VICA develops the "whole" student. His social and leadership abilities, as well as his skills.

VICA prepares youth for life. It brings together young men and women who share common interests for an exchange of ideas, a discussion of problems and the opportunity to work toward common purposes.

VICA offers prestige and recognition through a national program of awards and contests. It broadens perspectives through inter-club and inter-state activities. It offers co-curricular activities that make education and training more meaningful.

VICA instills spirit and a desire to learn, to grow, to become.

Bloodmobile coming to Sublette, Dixon

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit Lee County twice in February. Residents of Sublette and surrounding communities will have the opportunity to donate blood Friday from noon until 4 p.m. at the Sublette Community Building where the Sublette Home Extension Unit, whose members are sponsoring the visit, will be serving refreshments in the canteen.

Mrs. Vernon Becker and her committee are hoping area residents will "Have a Heart" on Valentine's Day and will donate a pint of life-saving blood to help others. The quota for the day is 50 pints.

On Feb. 18 the Red Cross Bloodmobile, sponsored by the Dixon Marine Corps League, will be in Dixon at the First Christian Church, 123 S. Hennepin Ave., from noon to 6 p.m. Mrs. Kalah Perry and her committee will welcome blood donors at the canteen and are looking forward to collecting the quota of 125 pints.

Just in time for these Bloodmobile visits the Lee County Red Cross has received official notice from the Peoria Regional Blood Center that the age limit for giving blood in Illinois has been lowered by one year. This means that anyone 17 years of age may now donate blood, providing he or she meets all the other medical history criteria. The Rev. Mary Ewbank, local blood program chairman, states the new regulation is a long-awaited boost for the Lee County Blood Program and puts Illinois in line with the policy followed by the states of Iowa and Wisconsin, where 17-year-olds have been

Information on education grants is available

WALNUT—Information concerning five federal financial aid for education programs, supported by the U.S. Office of Education, is available at the Walnut Township Memorial Library.

Basic grants are intended to be the "floor" of a financial aid package and may be combined with other forms of aid in order to meet the full costs of education. The amount of the grant is determined on the basis of the applicant's and his/her family's financial resources.

The library also is featuring an exhibit of the latest federal tax information for use of taxpayers in the Walnut community.

The exhibit consists of the most commonly used tax forms—Form 1040, 1040A, Schedule A & B—information about the toll-free telephone number, 800-252-2921; tax tips, publications and reference material.

The IRS publishes over 80 different free publications on a wide variety of subjects to help taxpayers with their income tax returns. Farmer role should be emphasized in Bicentennial year

SPRINGFIELD—Events of the Bicentennial celebration next year should recognize the role of the American farmer in helping make the United States the world's strongest nation, Michael J. Howlett, Secretary of State, said today.

Howlett spoke at the opening session of the Illinois Farmers Union 21st annual convention in the St. Nicholas Hotel here.

"Without the freedoms on which our nation was founded, we would not have the strong, free farm industry which has made us the granary of the world," Howlett said.

"In Revolutionary times, there was not much farming in what is now Illinois. We did not become a state until 1818. But the agricultural revolution started in Illinois.

"John Deere's steel plow, perfected in 1837, broke the prairie sod, too tough for earlier implements. Cyrus Hall McCormick came to Illinois from Virginia in 1847 with his reaper that cut five times as much wheat as the old scythe and cradle method.

"Illinois now exports more farm products than any other state. We are the soy bean capital of the world. Food raised by the Illinois farmer is consumed around the globe.

"The housewife thinks more about farm products today than ever before. When she buys a gallon of milk, or a loaf of bread, she may wonder where the money goes.

"In 1974, food prices rose about 15 per cent. But four fifths of the increase went to processors and distributors. Only one fifth went to the farmer.

"Farm families have to pay higher prices for everything too, including fertilizer to make things grow and gasoline to make the tractor run.

"To keep the American people on a nutritious diet, we need a healthy, prosperous farm industry.

"The American people eat well. They are growing taller. They live longer.

"Overseas, the story is different. Millions in Africa, Bangladesh and India are in danger of starvation unless we ship them food.

"Since 1954, the United States has sent 143 million tons of grain to help the hungry people of the world.

"In an eight-year period, we provided 84 per cent of all the food aid contributions from developed countries to less developed countries.

"Farming is one of the oldest occupations in our land. Before the Europeans discovered America, the Indians were farming it.

"The Indians gave us corn, the potato, tobacco and chocolate. Before Independence, the early English colonists were exporting farm products—pickled beef and pork, onions and potatoes, wheat and corn.

"The farmer is a bulwark of our democracy. He is used to adversity. He doesn't panic in recession, depression, inflation or any other economic condition.

"When the story of our heritage is told in events of the Bicentennial Year, the story of the farmer should be told with it. The farmer has been essential to the building of our nation."

Cattlemen plan for new IBIF

The reorganizational meeting of the Illinois Beef Improvement Federation (IBIF) is important to all Illinois cattlemen interested in improving the beef industry, says Wayne Wubben, Lee County Extension adviser.

The meeting begins at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 18 at the Junior Livestock Building, Illinois State Fairgrounds in Springfield.

Since its organization in 1968, the IBIF has operated as a skeleton organization. Now, membership is open to any Illinois cattlemen, organized group, or institution, says Wubben.

If proposed bylaws are accepted, IBIF will have one director for each beef breed group that has a state association, five commercial directors, and one director representing the central test stations. The various breed groups, commercial cattlemen, and central test station representatives will be allowed time during the meeting to elect their respective directors.

Also, as part of the reorganization, five proposed standing committees will be appointed. The committees are: membership, promotion and educational events, central test stations, on-farm testing, and performance-tested bull sales.

All Illinois cattlemen are urged to participate in this planning meeting.

Barrow show scheduled

The Northern Illinois Barrow Show is scheduled for March 3 at the Chana Sale Barn. Animals will arrive between 7 and 8:30 a.m., and the live show will start at 9 a.m.

Jerry Daws of Forreston and Loren Richolson of Davis Junction, co-chairmen of the show say the show is open to northern Illinois and bordering Wisconsin Counties. The show is being sponsored by the Ogle County Extension Service and Pork Producers Association.

The classes for the barrow show will be as follows: Individual Barrow and/or a Pair of Barrows (the purpose of the pair of barrows is for producers to test their skill in selecting hogs that are most nearly uniform in final cut-out data).

Write to Stan Eden at the Ogle County Extension Office, Box 99, Oregon, for a copy of the rules and regulations and an entry form. Or phone 732-2191.

Scholarships offered in agriculture

Scholarships for the 1976-76 school year at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (UIUC) are available to young men and women interested in agricultural communications, says Stan Eden, Ogle County Extension adviser.

Positions are available for agricultural communicators in farm publication writing and editing, farm radio and television broadcasting, agricultural public relations, photography, and agricultural advertising. The scholarships are supported by members of the agricultural communications industry.

To qualify for a scholarship, you must be a resident of Illinois. You must also enter the UIUC as a freshman or a transfer student during the 1975 fall semester and major in agricultural communications.

Application forms can be requested from: Agricultural Communications Scholarship Committee, 58 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois 61801.

Completed applications are due April 15, 1975.

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me something about endogenous hyperlipoproteinemia (type IV hyperlipoproteinemia). My doctor told me that I

Bernice Bede Osol

For Wednesday, Feb. 12, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19) A situation you've taken for granted will not fall into place as easily as you anticipated. Elbow grease is called for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't rely on information you will receive through a friend who got it from a dubious source. Get the facts yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ambitions will not be best-served today if you are wishy-washy. You know what's in it for you — act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others will not co-operate with your plans if they feel you are disguising your true motives. Be wise. Lay your cards on the table.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't expect more than is reasonable from a situation where you share an interest. What can be gained is very limited.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The uncertainty you'll feel prior to a discussion you'll be having with an associate will vanish once the talk begins.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your goals will be a bit fuzzy early in the day. Some valuable time will be wasted. Later, you'll double-step to get on target.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have a tendency today to cater to your whims in spite of what your common sense tells you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't misinterpret motives of those who love you and are concerned to see your interests protected. They want what's good for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll spare yourself from making a poor decision today when you forget about the if's and concentrate on the here-and-now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't be as sharp as you should be in material dealings with friends but you'll behave in a practical manner with others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Put your trust in one who has proven loyal to you, not in one who may be able to do something for you in the future.

Feb. 12, 1975
Conditions that have an influence on your resources will be more stabilized this year. However, this is not a period in which to spend beyond your means.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

have lipids in my blood and high triglycerides, whatever that means.

I'm 47 years old, 5-foot-9 and weighed 166 pounds when K went into the hospital for a hysterectomy. Now I'm on a 1200 calorie diet and losing weight. Is this something I'll always have to watch? The doctor said "next time we'll be working on your ticker."

DEAR READER — Even as a doctor I am always amused by the meaningless jargon that becomes part of the trade. Doctor's have no corner on this market, though. Just go listen to the engineers or computer scientists for a while.

All that gobbledegook means that you have to many fat particles in your bloodstream from eating too blamed much. That is why you are on a diet. Endogenous means from eating, hyper means increased, glyceridemia refers to the fat particles.

"Triglycerides" is a chemical term for fat. When you eat fat it is mostly as fatty acids attached to glycerol (called a triglyceride). The same is true of your body fat as it is stored and a lot of the fat in your blood. So, when you hear the term triglycerides think "fat."

People with high triglycerides, classified as you are, can usually be treated by diet alone. Those who have high cholesterol levels but normal or moderately elevated fats can usually profit from diet but may also need some medicines.

If you do well with your diet and avoid other habits you may escape that dire threat of having your ticker worked on the next time.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I hope you can help me understand what my medical diagnosis means. I was teaching in the Virgin Islands and came down with virus encephalitis. I was in the hospital in both the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Please explain this and the cause. It left my eye sight, hearing and speech impaired. Is there any cure? Is there a specialist for this condition?

DEAR READER — Encephalitis merely means inflammation of the brain. The cause of the inflammation in your case was attributed to a virus infection.

Many viruses, including the common measles virus, can induce the complication of inflammation of the brain. How serious it is depends entirely on how much of the brain is involved and how seriously. In many instances the damage is limited to temporary swelling and there is complete recovery.

In less fortunate circumstances brain cells can be permanently damaged, and the function they relate to is then impaired. In your case the areas of brain cells related to your sight, hearing and speech have apparently been involved. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dixon girls bomb Princeton to pick up another victory

By BOB WALLACE
Telegraph Sports Writer

A scrappy defense and a strong rebounding effort led the Dixon Girl's Interscholastic basketball team to a 54-12 romp over Princeton Monday night in Lancaster Gymnasium. The win was the squad's third this season in as many outings.

Dixon's pressure defense and rebounding superiority proved too much for Princeton in the end, as the home team overcame a slow start to win going away.

Princeton Opens Scoring
Princeton started the scoring with a basket by Anita Kelly only 12 seconds into the game. After that, neither team could score until Marty Shroyer put in a 15-footer for Dixon with three minutes left in the initial quarter.

Shroyer then followed with another 15-footer a minute later to put Dixon ahead to stay at 4-2. Dixon's Kathy Cook and Princeton's Paulette Cornwell then traded baskets to end the first quarter with Dixon ahead 6-4.

Cornwell's basket was to be the last points Princeton would score until midway in the third quarter. Meanwhile, the Dixon squad amassed 16 points during the second quarter and six more in the third quarter before Princeton was to score again.

Cook Opens Onslaught
Kathy Cook sank a field goal 40 into the second quarter to begin the scoring binge. Shroyer followed Cook's basket with two 12-footers to put Dixon ahead 12-4.

Peggy Smith followed Shroyer's buckets with one of her own, before Jacci Bogott drove the baseline for an easy five-footer. Smith then got back-to-back baskets only 27 seconds apart to build Dixon's lead to 20-4. Cook gave the Dixon girls a 20-4 halftime lead by swishing a 22-footer with a second left in the half.

Steak Continues
The Dixon girls began the second half the same way they ended the first one; by scoring the initial six points of the half to take a 26-4 lead.

These six points came via two free throws by Cook, a driving lay-up by Smith, and a break-away lay-up by Smith on a Shroyer assist.

Princeton Breaks Ice
The Princeton girls finally ended the Dixon scoring streak at 22 straight as Kim Klett hit at the 5:08 mark of the third quarter.

Bogott retaliated for Dixon with a pair of inside buckets, with Cook adding another bucket on a tip in of a missed free throw. Vickie Jacobs then broke into the scoring column with a 12-footer before Princeton added back-to-back baskets near the end of the third stanza.

Donna Pinegar ended the third quarter by driving the baseline and scoring from short range to give Dixon a 38-10 lead going into the final stanza.

Fourth Quarter Begins
Penny Potter opened the fourth quarter scoring with a free throw for Princeton. Dixon's Smith responded with a pair of field goals to give her team a 42-11 lead.

Jacobs then added a free throw, along with field goals by Jenny Davis and Mary Gridley. Less than 30 seconds after Gridley's basket, Davis scored again with an assist from Gridley to increase the home-town lead to 49-11.

Gridley Scores Final Basket
Gridley scored the final bucket of the game with 54 seconds left to give the Dixon girls the final 52-12 verdict. But before Gridley's bucket came baskets by Pinegar and Deb Kaeker, and a free throw by Princeton's Potter.

The Dixon squad scored 16 points in this stanza to match the 16 they scored in each the second and third quarters.

Princeton, on the other hand, managed to score only six points after the opening stanza.

Smith Scores 14
Smith led all scorers with 14 points. Cook also scored in the double figures as she added 10, while Shroyer and Bogott had eight and six, respectively. Princeton was led by Potter and Cornwell, with each having a trio of points.

The girl's basketball squad will be at home again tonight against Rochelle. The sophomore game will start at 6:15 p.m., with the varsity following.

The Dixon girl's sophomore squad also remained undefeated by beating the Princeton girls 21-14. The sophomores, like the varsity, also employed a tough defense to gain the victory.

The sophomore defense shut out Princeton in the opening stanza and only let Princeton shoot 24 times at the basket the entire game, with 16 of those coming in the second half.

Mary Kay Shrock led all scorers with 10 points for Dixon, while Lori Heeg and Betsy Flanagan added four points apiece. Dawn Cathelyn led Princeton with eight points.

Court cases deluge NFL

EDITORS NOTE: The National Football League is beset by problems in the courtroom and on the playing field. Commissioner Pete Rozelle discussed these in a wide-ranging interview in his Park Avenue office. In this, the first of a three-part series, the subject is the deluge of court cases and their possible effects on the league.

By WICK TEMPLE and CRAIG AMMERMAN AP Sports Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League intends to continue its draft, reserve system and the so-called Rozelle Rule without change until pending court cases are carried to conclusion—possibly in the U.S. Supreme Court.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, in an interview with The Associated Press, said chaos would result from any changes made before the legal process winds to an end.

While declining to comment on specifics of cases now in court, Rozelle noted that a San Francisco judge who ruled against the NFL in the Joe Kapp case did not issue a restraining order against anything the league is doing.

"We have no plans to change our present practices barring a final judicial resolution, or an agreement reached through collective bargaining, or the outside possibility of Congress passing some law," Rozelle said.

"We have no alternative. What are we going to do with the draft? What are we going to do with player contracts?"

Judge William T. Sweigert ruled in the Kapp case that the NFL's reserve clause which binds a player to one team is illegal, in violation of antitrust laws. He also ruled illegal the "Rozelle Rule" under which the commissioner can set terms of payment when one player does move to another team after playing out his option. And Sweigert ruled illegal a portion of the NFL draft which gives drafting teams unlimited rights to players they select.

"The judge didn't give any guidelines," Rozelle said. "He gave this decision and then he didn't implement it by order," leaving the league without guidelines as to what sort of player system would be acceptable.

The lean, tanned and suave man who has headed pro football since 1960 spends much of his working day in his Park Avenue office worrying as much about courtrooms as about football teams. Three pending cases threaten the structure of what has become the nation's most popular sport.

The Kapp case was decided without a trial, but Sweigert has scheduled a trial so a jury can decide the amount of damages the NFL owes Kapp. The former quarterback quit football in 1971 rather than sign the standard player contract which would have bound him to one team.

In a current trial in Minneapolis, 16 NFL players are charging that the Rozelle Rule holds them in virtual servitude and bondage. They say other teams won't seek their services for fear the commissioner would take a key player as compensation for their old team.

In an Atlanta case between the Internal Revenue Service and the Atlanta Falcons, the depreciation and amortization of players on owners' income taxes is being tested.

And the NFL Players Association and the NFL Management Council—the latter being the owners' bargaining agent—remain at odds over a union contract after last year's disruptive but inconclusive player strike.

Rozelle, a former public relations man and former general manager of the Los Angeles Rams, feels that out of all these maneuvers will come either exonerations of the league's practices—which he defends—or guidelines for restructuring the sport.

"The preferable forum is collective bargaining," Rozelle said, contending the league would rather work out its problems with its players outside the courtroom. But he adds,

"We're not going to defy any final law of the land."

He said the league would appeal the Sweigert decision after the trial for damages. The NFL tried to persuade the judge to allow an immediate appeal on his conclusions, but Sweigert turned that down.

"At the same time, some of the same issues are involved in the player association suit that is going on now in Minneapolis," Rozelle said. "So we are simply waiting for a final resolution, either through the courts, through collective bargaining that would be binding, or possibly Congress if they got into it."

Rozelle doubts Congress will solve the problem because any law would have to be sweeping enough to cover all pro sports.

But Rozelle defends the draft, the reserve system and the "option compensation clause" as essential to maintaining balance among NFL teams. He leaned over his desk and clinched his fists one on top of the other, demonstrating how sandlot players choose up sides to provide a good contest.

"The major goal of any team sport is to have competitive balance," he said. "I think that the rules of the NFL promote this successfully. I cite as an example the fact that half our games this season were decided by seven points or less. Our rules promote cycles, wherein dominating, you have teams able to improve themselves even if they don't have a great financial edge."

Some critics of the draft say its sole purpose is to hold down salaries by giving players only one team with which to negotiate.

"I don't believe that," Rozelle said. "The sole purpose of the draft is to give the weaker teams the chance to get the better players." He points to the resurgence of the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers to support his contention. In only five years they vaulted from a 1-13 season—worst in the league—to the NFL title.

The reason for the Rozelle Rule, he contends, is that a team has a strong investment in a player financially: scouting, signing him to a bonus after the draft and developing the player.

If players are allowed to develop and then jump to more affluent teams, their old team would suffer, Rozelle said, and the result could be collapsing franchises.

"There are two other parties that suffer," he said. "The remaining players suffer because their chance of playoff money has been greatly diminished and the fans suffer because they have financial and emotional interest in the team and all of a sudden it could be decimated."

And that brings the ultimate question: Q. Say you've got a situation where all this works to the advantage of the player, the fans and the owners, but it turns out that it isn't legal? Then what can be substituted to retain a balance?

A: Well, that would depend, I guess, upon the financial conclusions reached either judicially or through Congress. It's hard for us to say what can be done until you see what the final decision is.

Rozelle says the IRS case in Atlanta could have an effect on expansion franchises or sale of franchises. But he claims "it's not as big a thing as many people feel. Most, I think, have a misconception," thinking depreciation and amortization is something all owners do every year.

Bucks race by Pistons

By The Associated Press

From a Milwaukee vantage point, Detroit's lineup looks better without big Bob Lanier. And from Milwaukee captain Bob Dandridge's vantage point, the Bucks' line-up looks much better when it's not lining up.

While Detroit's big cat was away, the Milwaukee mice did play, taking advantage of Lanier's early foul trouble to run past the Pistons 130-109 in the National Basketball Association Monday night.

"I don't see why we shouldn't continue to run like we did tonight if Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar) goes to the boards," said Dandridge, who sank 10 of 13 shots and scored 23 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the

New Orleans Jazz shocked the Atlanta Hawks 96-89; and in the only American Basketball Association action, the Utah Stars beat the Virginia Squires 97-90.

Lanier took his bulky 6-foot-11 frame to the bench four minutes into the first period because of foul trouble and a bad knee. Jabbar roughed up Lanier's replacements, Jim Davis and George Trapp, and contributed 39 points, 11 rebounds, seven assists and three blocked shots.

The victory pulled the Bucks to within 1½ games of third-place Kansas City-Omaha and five games of first-place Chicago in the Midwest Division. The Pistons fell 1½ games behind Chicago with their fifth defeat in six games.

Jazz 96, Hawks 89

It appears that New Orleans has Atlanta all figured out.

After losing to the Hawks by margins of 26 and 32 points earlier in the season, New Orleans beat Atlanta for the second straight time.

This time guard Louis Nelson, taking over the offensive controls after Pete Maravich fouled out, scored 29 points to pace the victory.

Maravich had 17 points and eight assists before fouling out with 7:36 left in the game. John Brown led Atlanta with 19 points.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.
CASE C-674: Beth X., aged 36, is the wife of an alcoholic movie actor.

"Dr. Crane," she said, "my friends have urged me to have my husband sent to a hospital to receive the 'cure' for alcoholism."

"Others have helped me try to get him to join Alcoholics Anonymous."

"Some have even told me it is futile to attempt to maintain a happy home with a drunken husband."

"But you are the first to diagnose the background factors that may be the basic cause of my husband's chronic drinking."

"As I look back to our reduced romantic life the past few years, I am already inclined to agree with your diagnosis."

"For he was just as busy at the studios 10 years ago as last year, and 10 years ago he was quite ardent in the boudoir."

"So he should be as capable now as then, shouldn't he?"

"Unless he has developed a defeatism complex, as you have outlined."

"As a last resort I am going to try out your 'boudoir cheese-cake' recipe."

"And thanks again for offering me the background psychological factors that have threatened our happy home."

Heed Confucius

There are two types of counseling, as in personal interviews and also in newspaper "advice" columns.

In one, the disturbed patient is given simple "Yes" or "No" answers.

This is typical of Beth's friends, who told her to get a divorce or else send her mate to an alcoholic sanitarium.

But the other type of counseling is aptly illustrated in this daily medico-psychological column.

For we outline the "background" factors that have produced your trouble.

And then prescribe the psychological strategy by which you yourself can remedy the situation, without extravagant medical or hospital expense.

Confucius neatly describes these two counseling techniques when he said:

"If you give a hungry man a fish, you feed him for one day."

"But if you teach him HOW to fish, you feed him for 100 years!"

Under that first statement by

Confucius, we have the usual welfare policy!

It encourages voters to come back, day after day, for repeated handouts of free food stamps, ADC checks, and other financial or psychological "crutches" that keep the citizenry constantly dependent on HEW or Uncle Sam and other dispensers of our taxes.

But the second advice of Confucius is illustrated by this column, where we show you HOW to write a letter of application for a job.

Or how to carry on interesting conversation.

And how to avoid jealousy by realizing the different erotic, as well as gastric, demands of husband vs. wife.

In 313 daily columns each year, this "Worry Clinic" thus shows you HOW to solve your own problems, instead of encouraging you to become chronic "leaners" on others for food, medicine and welfare.

After a year or more of daily reading of this column, you wives and mothers acquire almost a college major in applied psychology and can indoctrinate your children accordingly for their adulthood, too!

So be grateful your newspaper shows you "How to" solve your many problems without sanitarium aid, divorce courts, and unnecessary stays in hospitals.
